BCCI: Trees for Life Project

June 27, 2025 | Marungko,Angat, Bulacan

In recent years, BCCI has made a strategic decision to conduct tree planting activities within the backyards, premises, or properties of member companies. This approach stems from the desire to ensure better after-care, monitoring, and long-term survival of the trees planted. By planting within spaces that are actively managed, member companies become direct and consistent stewards of the seedlings—integrating them into their daily operations, facility upkeep, or green programs.

This method strengthens each company's sense of ownership and environmental accountability, aligns with BCCI's sustainability goals, and helps transform business sites into greener, more eco-conscious environments. By planting where care is possible and practical, the Trees for Life Project becomes not just about planting, but truly growing trees.
